Kuehne + Nagel Group, Inc. Annual revenue: $11.8 billion Average revenue per customer: $97,622 Number of employees: 4,223 Company description: Kuehne + Nagel(NYSE: KEGN) is a global provider of transportation, logistics, and supply chain services in the broad industrial and materials handling markets. Its customers primarily operate in the automotive, chemical and industrial markets. The company has locations throughout North America, South America, Europe, Asia, and Australia. The company's core business, which comprises approximately 60% of total revenue, is its intermodal container-handling business. Kuehne + Nagel takes over the receipt and handling of these containers by railways, ocean carriers, and shippers (who sometimes carry the containers between regions) and trans-loads to and from trucks, refrigerated trailers, and bulk carriers. Kuehne + Nagel collects a handling charge for this service. That's not to say Kuehne + Nagel is one-dimensional. Among other things, the company offers logistics services and supply chain consultancy, computerized scheduling systems, parcel delivery, and warehousing services. Kuehne + Nagel has a broad customer base, with approximately 60% of its customers having over five years of business with the company. Management: CEO: Michael Berkemeier President: Matthew Sechler President of Logistics: Toshi Yoshimura The company is headquartered in Minneapolis, Minn. Matthew Sechler, the president of logistics and one of four brothers who together own 95% of the company, has been with Kuehne + Nagel since 1980, and became president in 2012. Berkemeier has been with the company since 1995. In 2016, Kuehne + Nagel was recognized by
